MISS JOHN

Head of Year 9 and an English Teacher

What made you decide to be a teacher?

In primary school I remember helping a younger girl with her reading and I was hooked from there! In secondary I always volunteered with games coaching, revision sessions, volunteer work with local schools...It's in my blood as well I guess; both my paternal grandparents worked in education.

If you could change your name for one day, what would you change it to?

I'd probably put some elaborate title in front of it...might be quite nice to be a Duchess for a day.

What was the last podcast you listened to?

Buffering the Vampire Slayer - the hosts watch each Buffy episode and dissect it. I also enjoy RedHanded - I'm a sucker for true crime.

How would your best friends describe you?

I actually asked them this! One said "beautiful soul who is a massive dork and full of poetry, love and potatoes". My other one said "kind, caring, queer, adventurous and funny". What a lovely ego boost!

If you had one day to do anything, what would you do?

I'd play roller derby in the morning, have food and cocktails with my friends, and go to a gig or the theatre in the evening. But I'd want to be in bed by 10pm somehow...

What was the last thing you looked up online?

Tickets to go see A Streetcar Named Desire.

Why did you choose to work at Becky High?

Getting to teach such a variety of amazingly funny and insightful students, and getting to work with such a variety of funny and insightful staff!
